Course Overview

The Family Office & Wealth Management Training Course provides a comprehensive and practical framework for understanding the structure, governance, investment management, and operational requirements of family offices and sophisticated wealth management environments. The course focuses on developing integrated approaches to family wealth preservation, investment strategy, portfolio management, risk management, liquidity planning, governance, and intergenerational wealth transfer.

Effective family wealth management extends beyond traditional investment management. It requires a coordinated approach to financial assets, alternative investments, family objectives, governance structures, risk exposure, liquidity requirements, professional advisers, and long-term succession considerations. This course equips participants with the knowledge and practical frameworks required to connect these areas and support more disciplined and informed family wealth decisions.

The course examines different family office models, including single-family and multi-family structures, together with their governance arrangements, operating models, responsibilities, service providers, investment oversight, and decision-making processes. Participants will explore how family offices can establish appropriate policies and controls while maintaining alignment between family objectives and long-term wealth strategies.

Participants will also examine strategic asset allocation, portfolio diversification, alternative investments, liquidity management, investment manager selection, performance evaluation, risk management, family governance, succession planning, and intergenerational wealth transfer. Practical case studies and workshops enable participants to apply these concepts to realistic family office scenarios and develop structured solutions for complex wealth management requirements.

By integrating investment management, family governance, operational oversight, risk management, and long-term wealth planning, the Family Office & Wealth Management Training Course supports professionals in developing a more structured approach to managing substantial family wealth. It also helps organizations and advisers strengthen decision-making, oversight, reporting, and coordination across the different areas involved in family wealth management.

Objectives

- Analyze the fundamental principles and functions of family offices and relate them to family wealth objectives within the course framework.
- Evaluate different family office models and determine their suitability based on the scale, complexity, structure, and requirements of family wealth.
- Develop an integrated family wealth management framework covering investments, governance, risk management, liquidity, and long-term planning.
- Design clear governance structures defining roles, responsibilities, decision-making authority, and reporting arrangements within a family office.
- Apply strategic asset allocation and portfolio diversification principles to family investment portfolios based on objectives, risk tolerance, and investment horizon.
- Evaluate traditional and alternative asset classes and determine their potential role within a diversified family wealth strategy.
- Develop practical approaches for managing liquidity, financial commitments, cash requirements, and long-term capital needs.
- Assess investment, operational, regulatory, concentration, reputational, and governance risks associated with family wealth management.
- Apply family governance principles to improve communication, decision-making, accountability, and coordination among family members and professional advisers.
- Develop structured approaches to intergenerational wealth transfer and continuity of family wealth management.
- Evaluate investment managers, advisers, and external service providers using appropriate performance, risk, governance, and service criteria.
- Prepare an integrated family office management plan covering governance, investments, risk management, liquidity, succession, and performance oversight.

Who Should Attend

The Family Office & Wealth Management Training Course is designed for professionals working in wealth management, private banking, asset management, investment management, financial advisory, and family office environments. It is particularly relevant for Family Office Managers, Wealth Managers, Investment Managers, Portfolio Managers, Financial Advisers, Investment Advisers, Asset Management Professionals, Risk Managers, Governance Specialists, and professionals responsible for overseeing substantial family assets.

The course is also suitable for family members involved in wealth management and financial decision-making, members of family business boards, executives responsible for family assets, investment professionals working within family-owned structures, and professional advisers supporting family offices. This includes financial advisers, accountants, lawyers, investment consultants, and other professional service providers who work with families with significant and complex wealth, within the boundaries of their professional responsibilities.

Senior executives, private banking leaders, asset management executives, investment professionals, and institutional decision makers can also benefit from the course by developing a broader understanding of family office operating models, investment governance, wealth preservation, portfolio oversight, risk management, family governance, and intergenerational wealth planning.

Learning Outcomes

- Explain the purpose, structure, and core functions of family offices within the broader wealth management environment.
- Distinguish between different family office models and evaluate the characteristics and requirements of each structure.
- Analyze family financial, investment, governance, and operational requirements and establish appropriate wealth management priorities.
- Develop a structured governance framework covering roles, responsibilities, decision-making processes, committees, and reporting.
- Prepare an investment policy framework aligned with family objectives, investment horizon, liquidity requirements, and risk tolerance.
- Develop asset allocation and diversification strategies for multi-asset family investment portfolios.

- Evaluate the potential role of traditional and alternative investments within a family wealth portfolio.
- Apply practical approaches to liquidity management, financial commitments, and long-term capital planning.
- Identify key investment, operational, regulatory, concentration, reputational, and governance risks and develop appropriate controls.
- Evaluate investment managers, advisers, and external service providers using structured assessment criteria.
- Develop an intergenerational wealth transfer and continuity framework that supports long-term family wealth management.
- Prepare an integrated family office strategy covering governance, investments, risk management, liquidity, succession, service providers, and performance monitoring.
