Course Overview

The Public Governance & Institutional Governance Training Course provides a strategic and practical framework for strengthening governance across government entities and public-sector organizations. The course focuses on establishing clear governance structures, defining roles and authorities, improving decision-making, and strengthening accountability, transparency, oversight, and institutional effectiveness.

Public governance establishes the broader framework for relationships between government institutions, leadership, oversight bodies, and stakeholders, while institutional governance focuses on the internal structures, policies, controls, and mechanisms through which an organization is directed, managed, and held accountable. Integrating both dimensions enables organizations to improve decision quality, clarify accountability, reduce duplication and conflicts of authority, and strengthen institutional trust.

The course covers the principles of public and institutional governance, governance structures, the roles of boards, committees and executive leadership, delegation of authority, accountability and transparency, risk management, internal controls, compliance, performance management, and stakeholder engagement. It also examines how governance can be integrated with strategic planning, decision-making, resource management, and government service improvement.

Particular emphasis is placed on practical governance implementation. Participants will learn how to assess governance structures, clarify responsibilities and decision rights, evaluate oversight mechanisms, identify governance gaps, address overlapping responsibilities, strengthen escalation and reporting mechanisms, and develop governance information that supports executives, committees, and decision makers.

Through case studies, governance assessments, responsibility and authority mapping, control evaluations, and governance improvement workshops, participants will develop practical capabilities to establish more transparent, accountable, and effective governance environments that support institutional performance, responsible resource management, sustainability, and organizational resilience.

Objectives

- Analyze the fundamental principles of public and institutional governance and their application in the public sector.
- Evaluate governance structures, roles, authorities, and responsibilities within government organizations.
- Develop clear frameworks for accountability, responsibility, and decision rights.
- Assess the effectiveness of governance committees, oversight structures, and escalation mechanisms.
- Apply principles of transparency, integrity, accountability, and responsible decision-making.
- Analyze the relationship between governance, strategic planning, performance management, and risk management.
- Evaluate internal controls, compliance mechanisms, and governance-related control gaps.
- Improve delegation of authority and coordination between leadership, executive, and operational levels.
- Develop indicators and mechanisms for measuring governance effectiveness and institutional performance.
- Strengthen stakeholder engagement, transparency, communication, and institutional accountability.
- Prepare effective governance reports for executives, committees, and decision makers.
- Develop a practical roadmap for strengthening public and institutional governance and sustaining continuous improvement.

Who Should Attend

This course is designed for government and public-sector executives, senior managers, department heads, governance professionals, committee members, strategic planning and performance management specialists, and officials responsible for institutional oversight and accountability.

It is particularly relevant to ministries, government authorities, public institutions, regulatory bodies, municipalities, and organizations seeking to strengthen public and institutional governance frameworks, clarify roles and authorities, improve accountability and transparency, and enhance decision-making effectiveness.

The program will also benefit internal audit, control, compliance, risk management, legal and public policy professionals, project and program managers, operations and finance managers, quality professionals, board and committee secretariat professionals, and specialists involved in developing organizational policies, procedures, and governance structures.
